

L aurel and Hardy, Gin and Tonic, Strawberries and Cream – some things were made to complement each other. So here's another - Colour and Contemporary.

Everyone loves an interior trend, but form must follow function. When creating a living space, it is paramount that the room works with your lifestyle, however, getting the basics right are even more important. The first thing to consider should definitely be the sofa; this is the one piece of furniture that will determine the rest of the room's style. Most of us do not have pockets deep enough to permanently adhere to seasonal interior trends, so it's wise to choose versatile colours – such as mid-greys or neutral tones. If you favour the contemporary look, don't let yourself be restricted to black and white – which can often leave your living space feeling minimal.

Splashes of colour can transform an adults-only domain into a fun family space, and Seaport is tipped to be one of the hottest colours for 2015. As you can see here, this oceanic hue complements both natural materials such as wood, as well as monochromatic block colours such as white, grey, and black. Teal hues are perfect for providing those rich jewel shades that are so desirable over the winter months, but will also ensure your home stays stylish into summer 2015.
