

Style & Selection

A hotel is no longer just a bed for the night, a quick stopover or a break in your journey - it has become an experience in itself. Hotels these days are often filled with glamorous sofas, dark decor and rich curtains, balanced gently with contemporary tones which not only bring the room to life but make you feel comfortable and somewhat spoilt.

We leave feeling special, invigorated, and maybe even a little inspired by the style. After a recent night away I decided to dedicate an area in the Farnham showroom to this theme by creating a boutique space filled with velvets, opulent wallpapers and coppery accents that would inspire you.

Now finished, the area feels grown-up, sophisticated and creates a '5 star' luxurious space. We have used a mixture of colours as the 'boutique' theme doesn't have to be restricted to dark tones. Damask inspired wallpapers and panelling flow throughout the area and sofas mingle with dining and living furniture to create the full experience.

Homes can have a mixture of styles; open plan living spaces naturally tend to be more modern and give you the flexibility of blending the kitchen and dining areas together. However, to escape today's busy world, homes often need to have some separate areas that still allow you that personal space.

Start moving your living room into Spring whilst maintaining the comfort and warmth of Winter by pairing bold coloured accessories with soft, sumptuous velvets and a sofa you can snuggle into. Of course, you cannot be expected to change your sofa with the season, but an elegantly glamorous sofa such as the Elise in a natural hue can be easily dressed to suit every interior trend.

Gone are the days when artificial plants were a bit of an eyesore - more often we are finding beautifully crafted foliage to help soften your home without the hassle of nurturing indoor plants. Here we have dressed the coffee table with delicate lifelike potted lavender to help create a subtle yet effective focal point.
